September 2010 Notes

There may still be one or two Classic Car shows to attend but the Peterborough LRO show, 11th–12th this month, brought the Land Rover show season to a close.

Just Plymouth to come now, and I make no apologies for repeating the itinerary for that event, because we have a few new enthusiasts asking for a copy of the Notes.

Classic Car and Bike Show. Ripon Racecourse. 5th September.

It was quite cool and overcast as we entered the racecourse at Ripon to attend Mark Woodward's Classic Car and Bike Show, where we were parked between two tidy Land Rovers in the Commercial, Military and 4x4 section.

The sun soon came out and all the cars and bikes arrived to be lined up. The usual variety of chairs, tables and bottles of wine were set up at the rear of the exhibits and the owners settled down to a day in the sun.

I toured the trade stands and bought some Auto Glym polish and a boxed set of small sockets. The indoor food counter beckoned and Margaret and I enjoyed heated pies followed by cakes and coffee.

The first exhibits to be called into the arena were the Military and Commercial class but not the 4x4s, so I waited for the 1980 to 1989 exhibits to be called, and 526 sat between a Lotus and a Jaguar.

At the end of the day the class winners were called to the arena for the best in show award, which went to an immaculate 1921 Model T Ford. The Dales Classic Car Club won the best club stand award.

A nice relaxing day at a good site and a chance to display a Discovery among the Land Rovers.

Another almost rust free D1 emerges. G767NRH

These early cars are so cheap that there is no wonder that they are either broken up for spares or modified for off-road competition. This car is no exception, but luckily it was spotted by a classic car enthusiast who has no fewer than 9 Wolseleys and has 15 classic cars in total, plus the Discovery.

David and Marilyn came onto the Discovery Owners stand at the Peterborough show and after talking to the enthusiastic band on the stand; they knew that this car was worth keeping for the future.

It was acquired in late May this year and has been named 'Ludovic'. This was thought to be quite a fitting name because the original meaning is 'Famed Warrior'.

'Ludo' is a Series 1 Discovery V8 (note no 'i'), in Foxfire Red and was first registered on 19th January 1990, but was actually build in 1989.

It looks stunning, although to the purist, the aftermarket alloy wheels and the checker plate on the lower panels are not in keeping with a car of this quality.

I am sure that there will be some rust on it somewhere but with David's skill in restoring old cars there should be no problem in returning it to a nice condition.

David said "He has covered just 97,000 miles in his 20 years and is bearing up well. As with all Discoverys of this age he does need a little attention and the idea is to try and return him to his full former glory"

We look forward to hearing more from David as he carries out some maintenance

477 emerges again

Not yet sure who owns it but it has appeared on the LRO forum. We lost track of it when Dean sold it to someone in Wiltshire over a year ago.

By the look of the pictures, it is having a hard life, when we find the owner perhaps he can be persuaded to restore it sometime.

469 in publicity shot.

I opened up a free copy of classic car buyer - given away at the Stoneleigh show - and found that they have been using a nice picture of 469 that I took several years ago.

It was being used as a banner heading for the "cars for sale" section!

Air Training Corps Help the Heroes Day. 4th September. Sherburn Aero Club.

Martin invited a few Discovery owners to put on a display at the Aero Club, and by coincidence we assembled a good selection of models, being my Series I, a Series II, a Series II facelift, a D3 and Martin's G4.

A selection of classic cars, military vehicles, fire engines and bikes were assembled, together with toy and game stalls. Food was available in the Club House

In brilliant sunshine a RAF Rescue helicopter hovered and a crewmember came down by hoist. Light aircraft and helicopters were flying all day taking passengers up for a trip.

At 3.20 pm a Spitfire gave us a flypast, and then a jet and a Chipmunk followed. An attempt to inflate a hot air balloon was made but after three full burns it was abandoned.

A good day out for a good cause and enjoyed by all, and another chance to display 526.

D1 in France

Strange story which makes me now the owner of a Discovery 1

This car was parked in our company compound since a couple of years.

Last year, I approach the owner, but the future of her was not so clear. Would she stay in Australia?

This year, I approach again, and the reply was: I stay in Australia; Therefore, I buy the car without any inside inspection, while the paint outside was wearing the marks of a two years parking standing.

This car is a Discovery type LJGBF8, VIN SALLJGBF8GA441497, with "sonar" blue inside. Engine is Tirbo diesel 2.5. I (a VM engine if I am not mistaking)

Heavy inspection is done right now, as I do not know how the car was maintained (there is no maintenance file). Anyway the time has come for such as the mileage is 180 000 kms

One question: Is the camshaft driven by a cascade of pinion?

Raymond Bechetoille. Paris

(Raymond, the engine will be a Land Rover 200 Tdi with a rubber belt driving the camshaft. If you have no service history, I recommend that you have the belt replaced as soon as possible. A broken belt is a disaster for this type of engine. Ed.)

Classic Car Show. Raby Castle. 22nd August

The Discovery Owners Club, Durham County Section, put on a great show at this delightful venue last year, and this year they did not disappoint as Monty had ordered sunshine all day.

Nick's body off exhibit drew great crowds, and many visitors to the stand were amazed to see the strength of the chassis. The non Land Rover visitors to the stand did not realise that a Discovery had a chassis under what, to some people, may appear to be of monocoque construction.

This Mark Woodward classic show is gaining in popularity, and clubs such Rolls-Royce and Jaguar, were present. Perhaps by far the best line up of classic cars was the Triumph TR stand, with all models being exhibited.
